A Train Without a Crew. A singular accident, which has just come to light, occurred early last Tuesday morning on the Shenandoah Valley Railroad. As the north bound passenger train No 2 was nearing Buchanan, a station near Roanoke, Va., about five o'clock, some one noticed that the hose attached to the airbrakes was leaking. The train was stopped, and the entire craw left the train for the purpose of repairing the leak, leaving on purpose of repairing the reak, reaving on board the passengers, the express messenger, the postal clerk and the newsboy. The brakeman was sent back to flag a freight that was coming in the rear. The freight soon made its appearance, and not having been notified in time to stop on the heavy downward grade, plunged into the hindmost car of the passenger train, which was a Pallman wrecking the greater part of it. a Pullman, wrecking the greater part of it and badly injuring the rest of the train. The concussion was so great that the thret-

The wildcat train rau at a fearful rate of speed until the steam became exhausted, when it came to a standstill about fifteen miles from the place of the collision. During its flight the passengers were thrown about in their seats, and were almost wild with terror. Apprehending that some south-bound train might collide with the runaway after it had stopped, all the passengers left the cats and built fires in the fields to await the freight, which they thought would bring up the crew of their After the lapse of over an hour the rear train hove in sight, and the passenge engineer and fireman were soon at their places. The brakeman, who had been sent back to flag the freight, no sooner saw that a collision was inevitable than he struck for the woods and has not yet turned up. Several of the passengers received severe bruises, but no one was seriously injured by the collision. The crew of the runaway train have been ordered to Roanoke on a special, where their conduct will be investi-

> AGED MISERS STARVED TO DEATH .- Yesterday afternoon a policeman forced an entrance to the rear of a frame dwelling on Locust street, Philadelphia, and discovered the dead bodies of two old misers, Joseph Perry, aged 73 years, and Robert Price, aged 65 years. The two old men were eccentric, and had occupied the premises for over thirty years, although neither has performed any manual labor for over eight years. They occupied the two rooms on the ground floor, both of which were scanti-ly furnished, while the door leading to the second floor was locked and barred, and nailed to keep intruders from effecting an entrance by that means. Both men were known as misers, and refused to associate with any one in the neighborhood. They always kept the windows tightly closed, and both were never known to be absent from the house at the same time. All sorts of stories were affoat about the neighborhood. Some of the neighbors stated that they were known to have money deposited in the Philadelphia Savings Bank and other banking institutions. In the back room the officer stumbled over the dead body of Price, which was lying on the floor, and in the front room the body of Perry was found lying on an old lounge. Both were terribly emaciated, and had every appearance of having been starved to death. The coroner's physician viewed the remains, and expressed the opinion that death had resulted from that cause.

LABOR SCARE IN LONDON .- West End London, had another labor scare yesterday Crowds of unemployed workingmen assembled in front of the offices of the Local Government Board and demanded relief. Mr. Ritchie, president of the board, received a deputation from the crowd outside, but said Ritchie, president or the crowd outside, but said deputation from the crowd outside, but said he could p omise nothing. When the crowd were apprised of this they hooted the government, and marched to Trafalgar Square, where an indignation meeting was held and resolutions were adopted protesting against the anathy of the government.
